- KILLDEER MOUNTAIN BATTLEFIELD STATE HISTORIC SITE: The Killdeer Mountain Battlefield State Historic Site overlooks the site of a battle fought on July 28, 1864, between troops commanded by General Sully and a gathering of Sioux Indians. The attack by federal troops was on an Indian trading village of gathered Hunkpapa, Sans Arc, Miniconjous, Blackfeet, Yanktonai people and a small number of Dakotas. The Killdeer Mountain offensive was one of a series of military reprisals against the Sioux that followed US-Dakota War of 1862 in Minnesota. Many of the Native Americans that were gathered near the Killdeer Mountains were not involved in, nor connected to the 1862 war. The Killdeer Mountain Battlefield is eight and one-half miles northwest of Killdeer, Dunn County. <https://www.history.nd.gov/historicsites/kmb/index.html>
- LITTLE MISSOURI STATE PARK: Located in western North Dakota, Little Missouri State Park is a quiet oasis. This park is home to over 45 miles of trails that run through the picturesque North Dakota Badlands. Visitors can enjoy breathtaking views of the waterways rolling through the rugged landscape of the Badlands. Known for equestrian camping, there is a mix of both modern and primitive campsites. The state park is equipped with horse amenities including corrals and a round pen. <https://www.parkrec.nd.gov/little-missouri-state-park-0>
- LOST BRIDGE/LITTLE MISSOURI HWY 22 BRIDGE: As you reach the low point the Badlands, you cross the Little Missouri River at the Lost Bridge site, so named for the fact that when the bridge was built in 1930, there were no road to it. The highway wasn't completed for 20 years after the bridge was built. A plaque and a piece of the old bridge have been installed on Highway 22 near the new ridge as a memorial. <https://killdeer.com/place-of-interest/the-lost-bridge/>
